

The Agenda of the Atheist Religions

(The agenda of some of the Atheist religions and the religion of Communism.)

It is important to understand what these religions are doing in order to resist what their religions teach and stand strong in God's truths. Often, these atheist religions think there are no truths for life, they do not believe there are any truths to live by. This is often one of the tenets of their religion. For example, those who only believe in science say their truths are the only truths for life, but science is just information and does not tell us how to live.

Not only that, but science also makes up truths. They will say that their theories are absolutely true, but theories are just theories, they are only guesses. Science is supposed to be an evaluation that leads to some type of absolute concrete conclusion. They insist that their guesses are absolute truths.

Also, science lately has tended to devalue life. Science will say that life is unique and special and search for life on other planets because they are fascinated by life, yet they tend to devalue life on earth by making as though life on earth is just a very little part of the life in the universe. There are some leading scientists who think of human beings as no more than a rock if that. I remember Carl Sagan saying that 'Nature was, is, and will always be.' His supposition devalues the uniqueness of life. In my opinion, life is very special, even more so than even a star. A star is only a composition of natural elements and not a living breathing and thinking life form.

Worldly values are often the things that are taught in our schools in the United States instead of spiritual values. Parents often focus on worldly values in their home. For example, parents will talk about how well their children are doing at school or in some activity instead of how well they are following God. That is something that needs to change so that we convey the importance of our spiritual values and a spiritually centered life. Very little of the early teaching that I encountered when I was a new believer was about the differences between what the world believes and what it means to be a believer in the Messiah and God.

I did not understand that culture and much of Christianity did not teach what the Bible teaches. Culture and especially the religions that do not believe in a god can be antagonistic towards believers in the true God. They value their own Atheistic, Humanistic, or Communist religions. As I have mentioned at times, the Stanford Dictionary of Philosophy and Religion says that any ideology is a religion even if it does not involve a belief in a God. Some religions are only a philosophy on how to behave and not a belief in a god.

People have been duped into thinking that religion only involves belief in a God. Therefore, in the political world in our country, the courts in our country have been partial to those of Atheist religions. They have made those who observe religions that believe in God be taught the religions of the Atheists, Humanists, and Communists. Atheists want their religion taught. That is another tenet of their religion. The courts have mindlessly succumbed to the atheist religions' prejudice against people who believe in God.

Another tenet of these religions is to teach dissatisfaction and rebellion in society even if that society is a good society. They want their religion to take over the countries of the world and they incite wars, rebellion, and violence.

The people who observe atheist religions often have no tolerance for those who believe in God. In school, they hear what they already believe and those who believe in God must listen to the atheist viewpoints taught as though they are truth. The atheist religions are religions of intentions and observed facts. They may come up with good intentions. Coming up with intentions is another tenet of these religions to follow. Their good intentions are not necessarily truths for life.

Intentions do not always produce truth. In fact, intentions can be evil. Hitler believed that those who could not contribute to the advancement of their society be put to death. We call that murder for convenience's sake. I remember watching a movie about the German genocide during the World War 2 era, and in the movie, an elderly man who probably worked all his life to support his family and build their society was trying to convince the German interviewer that he could still be productive.

Also, facts do not give people the ethical tools for a good life. How does knowing how far the Sun is from the Earth help us to treat others right? People are being taught to value facts over how to live life.

There are also those who do not have any godly values and are against keeping the commandments of our good God that are in the Bible. There is an assault by these various factions/religions on the truths in the Bible. And they attack anything that they do not like and will attack spiritual values as if they are nonsense. I watched a show once about this supposedly very intelligent person. He thought just like Hitler and said that we should murder people who were not productive.

These atheist religions often think that believing in God is nonsense. Murder for some of them has been and still is a viable option to control their society. Communist China murdered anyone who did not go along with their system of government. They murdered 70 million of their own people for not believing in the tenets of their government. These people were just trash to them. The children were even rewarded for telling on their parents and their parents were then put to death. These were real murders and not just the result of war. China and other communist countries still put its citizens in concentration camps, and they use the people for forced labor and body parts. They call their concentration camps re-education camps.

Controlling societies often maintain their control over their country by any means necessary. These people who are against God's good ways and against believers in God, can be a real problem to the freedom of the people in a country. When I was younger, I did not understand how far these people would go to overthrow the freedom in any country in order to establish a godless sinful society and to establish their ideology and a Communist, Atheist, or Humanist Religion in that country.

We should be careful to follow the Bible and not the agenda of these people. We need to be a people of the book and keep God's commandments. Also, we need to understand that some of Christianity and Judaism no longer believes in keeping God's good commandments. One pastor of a large church up north told me personally that the Bible is worthless. They are essentially saying that believing in God is worthless. I have heard of Rabbis saying in front of their congregation that they did not believe in God. We sometimes have pastors and rabbis teaching good advice instead of the spiritual truths from the Bible.

Our faith in God is being attacked on a regular basis. Do not succumb to their indoctrination, prejudice, and lies. For example, they will say the Bible believing religions do not help others or they will cite the Christian crusades. The Bible commands us to help others over and over. It has been well documented that the people of Bible based religions help people much more than any of the atheist religions. Also, the crusades only lasted for a short while over the 2,000 year life span of Christianity. They talk like it happened just yesterday, but it occurred some 900 years ago. The atheist religions murdered over 100 million people in just the 19th century which makes them the most murderous religions that have ever existed. They continue to murder people who do not go along with their wicked religious systems. So, do not be fooled by their false religious systems. Follow God and the commandments in the Bible. God knows what is best for us and wants what is best for mankind. Deuteronomy 10:13 NKJV says, "Keep the commandments of the LORD and His statutes which I command you today for your good."
